

My Mosler Biography:

Richard “Dick” Dyer - I joined Mosler in the summer of 1968. Dan Hobbs, V.P. of Industrial Relations at Mosler, hired me to manage the Industrial Relations department for the Bank & Commercial Division. This included two plants in Hamilton; the lock plant at Milford; Wayne, New Jersey; Buffalo and Franklinville in New York; Grandview, Missouri; and the Herman Safe Co. in San Francisco, California. My primary responsibility was Labor Relations. All but two of the facilities were unionized. I also supervised the various personnel managers with our responsibilities for Employment, Training, Benefits, Wage and Salary Administration, the Medical Department, and Security, etc.

In the late 1970s I moved to Corporate where my Bank and Commercial responsibilities were expanded to include Labor Relations for the Installation and Service organization. When a Personnel Department was established for the Sales & Service organization, I moved back to Bank & Commercial with continued responsibility for Labor Relations in the field. I remained in this capacity until I retired at the end of 1988.

My wife Dora and I celebrated our 65th wedding anniversary in June. Our children, Cathy and Rich, live within a five-mile radius of our home and have given us four wonderful granddaughters and a precious two-year old great-grandson.

Dora and I are enjoying our retirement, sharing our time between Ohio and Florida. We are looking forward to seeing many of our Mosler friends at the upcoming reunion.
